

2016 Scholarship Application Instructions

The Alaska Native Tribal Health Consortium (ANTHC) is a private non-profit, tax-exempt corporation that compacts with the federal government to provide health care-related services to over 150,000 Alaska Native and American Indian people.

ANTHC's major programs include Administration, Community Health, Information Technology, Human Resources, Environmental Health and Engineering, and the Alaska Native Medical Center, which is managed in cooperation with Southcentral Foundation.

ANTHC awards ten (10) scholarships up to $5,000 per academic year to Alaska Native or American Indians, who are:

- Permanent Alaska residents
- Interested in working in the healthcare related fields
- Currently enrolled in a formal education or training program

This scholarship may be used for tuition, books, and fees for professional certificate programs or higher education degrees (Associates, Bachelors, Graduate and PhDs). ANTHC grants these scholarships as an integral part of its long-term strategy to increase Alaska Natives and American Indians in the healthcare field.

An appointed committee conducts a final review of the application evaluations and makes an official selection of awarded applicants.
