Are you Alaska Native or American Indian? A researcher, clinician, public health professional, or community partner interested in Indigenous health research?

Join us to connect, collaborate, and build meaningful relationships within the Indigenous research community.

CHOOSE YOUR PROGRAM EXPERIENCE

Week One | Introduction to Research I May 3-7
Designed for those who are interested in health research but have limited research experience, including students and community members. Presentations and speakers will provide introduction to Indigenous and Western research methods, types of health research, community-based participatory research, culturally responsive communication and dissemination, the history and ethics of health research in Alaska.

Week Two | Advanced Research I May 10-14
Designed for experienced researchers and health professionals. Presentations and speakers cover Indigenous and Western knowledge and ways of knowing, correcting historic power imbalances in research and reclaiming Indigenous methodologies, community-driven health research in Alaska, community-based participatory and culturally responsive research, human subjects research principles, Institutional Review Board (IRB), and historical trauma and research.

Participants should attend selected weeks in their entirety. Breakfast and lunch provided on program days. Travel scholarships are available.

Program Information
Since 2019, the Alaska Indigenous Research Program (AKIRP) has provided Indigenous-centered, cross-cultural research education and training to Indigenous and non-Indigenous students, researchers, health professionals and scientists.

Program Goal
AKIRP is a collaboration between the Alaska Native Tribal Health Consortium (ANTHC} and Alaska Pacific University (APU) to increase the health research capacity of Alaska Native and American Indian people and communities.

This program is supported by the National Institute of General Medical Sciences of the National Institutes of Health under Award Number 1S06GM164730-01. The content is solely the responsibility of the authors and does not necessarily represent the official views of the National Institutes of Health.

2027 Alaska Indigenous Research Program

Scan the code or visit anthc.org/akirp

ALASKA NATIVE TRIBAL HEALTH CONSORTIUM

ALASKA PACIFIC UNIVERSITY

For more information contact
akirp@anthc.org anthc.org/akirp